INTRODUCTION

The appraisal process
The appraisal of Commonwealth records is based on the methodology for Designing and Implementing Recordkeeping Systems (DIRKS) outlined in the Australian Standard AS4390-1996, Records Management, Part 1: General, Clause 1.3, and expanded in the DIRKS Manual. It is an analytical process that involves identifying which records should be created, assessing the value of records for future use, identifying those records with enduring value and deciding how soon the remainder can be destroyed or otherwise disposed of.

The process can involve making decisions about the alteration of records, and where records have already been created, the transfer of ownership or custody of these records. It also involves authorising the action arising from the assessment and putting the action into effect by sentencing. The appraisal process provides a framework of accountability for recordkeeping.

Disposal authorisation
Section 24 of the Archives Act 1983 provides that records are not to be disposed of without the consent of the Archives unless the action of disposal is positively required by law, or takes place in accordance with a normal administrative practice of which the Archives does not disapprove. Advice on the provisions of the Archives Act can be obtained from any National Archives office.

Purpose of this authority
This authority authorises the transfer of custody or ownership, or other disposal, of Commonwealth records as required by the Archives Act.

Using this authority
This authority covers records controlled by the agency and applies only to the records or classes of records described in the authority.

This authority is to be used to determine the custody or ownership of Commonwealth records. This is done by a process known as ‘sentencing’. Sentencing involves the examination of records in order to identify the individual disposal class to which they belong. This process enables the sentencing officer to determine the appropriate disposal action for the records. Advice on sentencing can be obtained from your nearest National Archives office.

Records remaining in Commonwealth custody should be sentenced in accordance with the Administrative Functions Disposal Authority issued by the National Archives to cover housekeeping and other records common to most Commonwealth agencies and other specific Records Disposal Authorities issued to the agency. Records selected as national archives should be transferred into the custody of the National Archives as specified in the authority. The Archives no longer accepts records which have not been sentenced in accordance with valid records disposal authorities. Commonwealth agencies may withdraw records for official reference purposes through the lending service.
Amendment of this authority
An amendment of this authority must be approved by the National Archives. Officers using the authority should advise the National Archives of any changes considered desirable.
