This document notifies all relevant entities, agents or people (see above) that I have issued a disposal freeze for Commonwealth records (includes data) relevant to the remit of the Royal Commission on Antisemitism and Social Cohesion and any subsequent actions by the Government.

The National Archives of Australia (National Archives) has determined that a disposal freeze is necessary to ensure that these records are protected and available when required.

Background

On Thursday 8 January 2026, the Prime Minister, the Hon Anthony Albanese MP, announced the establishment of the Royal Commission on Antisemitism and Social Cohesion (the Royal Commission), in the wake of the Bondi terrorist attack on 14 December 2025. Letters Patent were issued the following day by the Governor-General, Her Excellency the Honourable Ms Sam Mostyn AC to the Hon Virginia Bell AC SC.

The Independent Review into Australia's federal law enforcement and intelligence agencies by Mr Dennis Richardson AC, established on 29 December 2025 in response to the Bondi terrorist attack, has become a part of this Royal Commission. A final report by Commissioner Bell is due not later than 14 December 2026.

Purpose

This disposal freeze suspends the National Archives of Australia's permissions to destroy any Commonwealth records related to antisemitism and social cohesion. These records must be retained for the purposes of informing the Royal Commission in its inquiries and considerations, as detailed in its Letters Patent, as well as any subsequent actions by the Government.

Relevant records cannot be destroyed using any records authorities issued by the National Archives. This also applies to records that have already been authorised for destruction. Destruction of relevant material under normal administrative practices (NAP) is also suspended.

The only exception to this is General Records Authority 31 - Destruction of source or original records after digitisation, conversion or migration (GRA 31), which can be used to destroy source records that have been digitised, as long as its conditions and exclusions are complied with.

It is a legal requirement that you apply this disposal freeze by protecting any relevant records and informing the appropriate people in your organisation as a matter of urgency. Penalties for the unauthorised destruction of records are specified in various Commonwealth laws, including the Archives Act 1983.

Records covered

This disposal freeze covers Commonwealth records related to:

- social cohesion in Australia
- antisemitism and religious and ideologically motivated extremism and radicalisation in Australia

- the capabilities and powers of law enforcement, border control, immigration and security agencies to respond to antisemitic conduct
- the circumstances surrounding the Bondi terrorist attack on 14 December 2025, such as relevant agencies':
 - knowledge prior to the attack
 - judgements, decisions and actions made in relation to the attack; and
 - interactions and information sharing between agencies, other jurisdictions, partners, and community groups.

As well as Commonwealth records related to (added in June 2026):

- security of the Jewish community and other communities in Australia
- firearms licensing arrangements, communications with firearms licensing agencies and systems, processes and procedures for communicating with firearms licensing agencies
- immigration, citizenship and travel records of persons of interest identified by the Royal Commission
- funding, tax concession and other financial arrangements applying to and for charities and other organisations of interest identified by the Royal Commission
- guidance and training in relation to antisemitism
- guidance and training in relation to de-radicalisation
- approaches and programs in relation to de-radicalisation and strengthening social cohesion
- counter-terrorism, including systems, processes and procedures for information sharing with State, Territory and Commonwealth agencies and for preventing and/or responding to terrorist attacks
- the emergency response to the Bondi terrorist attack on 14 December 2025.

This disposal freeze applies to records in any digital or physical format, including, but not limited to, documents, emails, text and instant messages, social media posts and messages, audiovisual recordings, photographs, data and datasets, and models, algorithms and records of automated processes (including the use of artificial intelligence), and any associated inputs and outputs.

This disposal freeze applies to records regardless of where they were created or whether they have been captured into formal business systems. This includes records:

- in designated document and records management systems
- in active and inactive databases and digital business systems and platforms, including data stores for structured, semi-structured and unstructured data (such as agency data repositories, data lakes, and data warehouses), managed on premise or by third-party service providers, e.g. through cloud services
- in collaboration platforms and shared work group spaces, e.g. Microsoft Teams or GovTeams
- in individual and shared email accounts
- on shared, local or personal drives, e.g. network drives, OneDrive accounts, and portable drives, laptops and other personal or work devices; and
- in social media and other applications (apps) on personal and work devices.

All records must be maintained with the metadata necessary to provide context and support the discoverability of and access to information.

Please note: the Royal Commission is of national significance and, therefore, so are records relevant to it and subsequent Government actions. Some records in agencies will need to be considered for resentencing, as they may now meet the significance criteria of a records authority class requiring longer retention, including 'retain as national archives' (RNA) classes.

Authority

This action is taken pursuant to paragraphs 24(2)(b) and 24(2)(c) of the Archives Act 1983.

Duration

This disposal freeze will take effect immediately and will be in force until further notice by the National Archives.

Action required

The named Commonwealth departments and agencies, all other Australian Government agencies, and any other persons or entities in possession of Commonwealth records should:

1. Ensure that all relevant workers are informed of this disposal freeze.
2. Conduct a risk assessment to:
 - a. determine if workers, contractors or records service providers have any records due for destruction that come within the scope of the disposal freeze; and
 - b. identify and retain relevant existing and future records subject to this disposal freeze.
3. Check any records already proposed for destruction that may come within the scope of the disposal freeze to ensure they are not covered by the disposal freeze.
4. Retain existing and future records subject to the disposal freeze until further notice.

Impact

The processing, reviewing and storage costs arising from the implementation of this disposal freeze will be borne by the agencies or other agents or people concerned.
